

IN FLANDERS' FIELDS

In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place; and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly
Scarce heard amid the guns below.

We are the Dead. Short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now we lie,
In Flanders fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders fields.

Imagination and the Anthropocene

N. Z. Ashraf

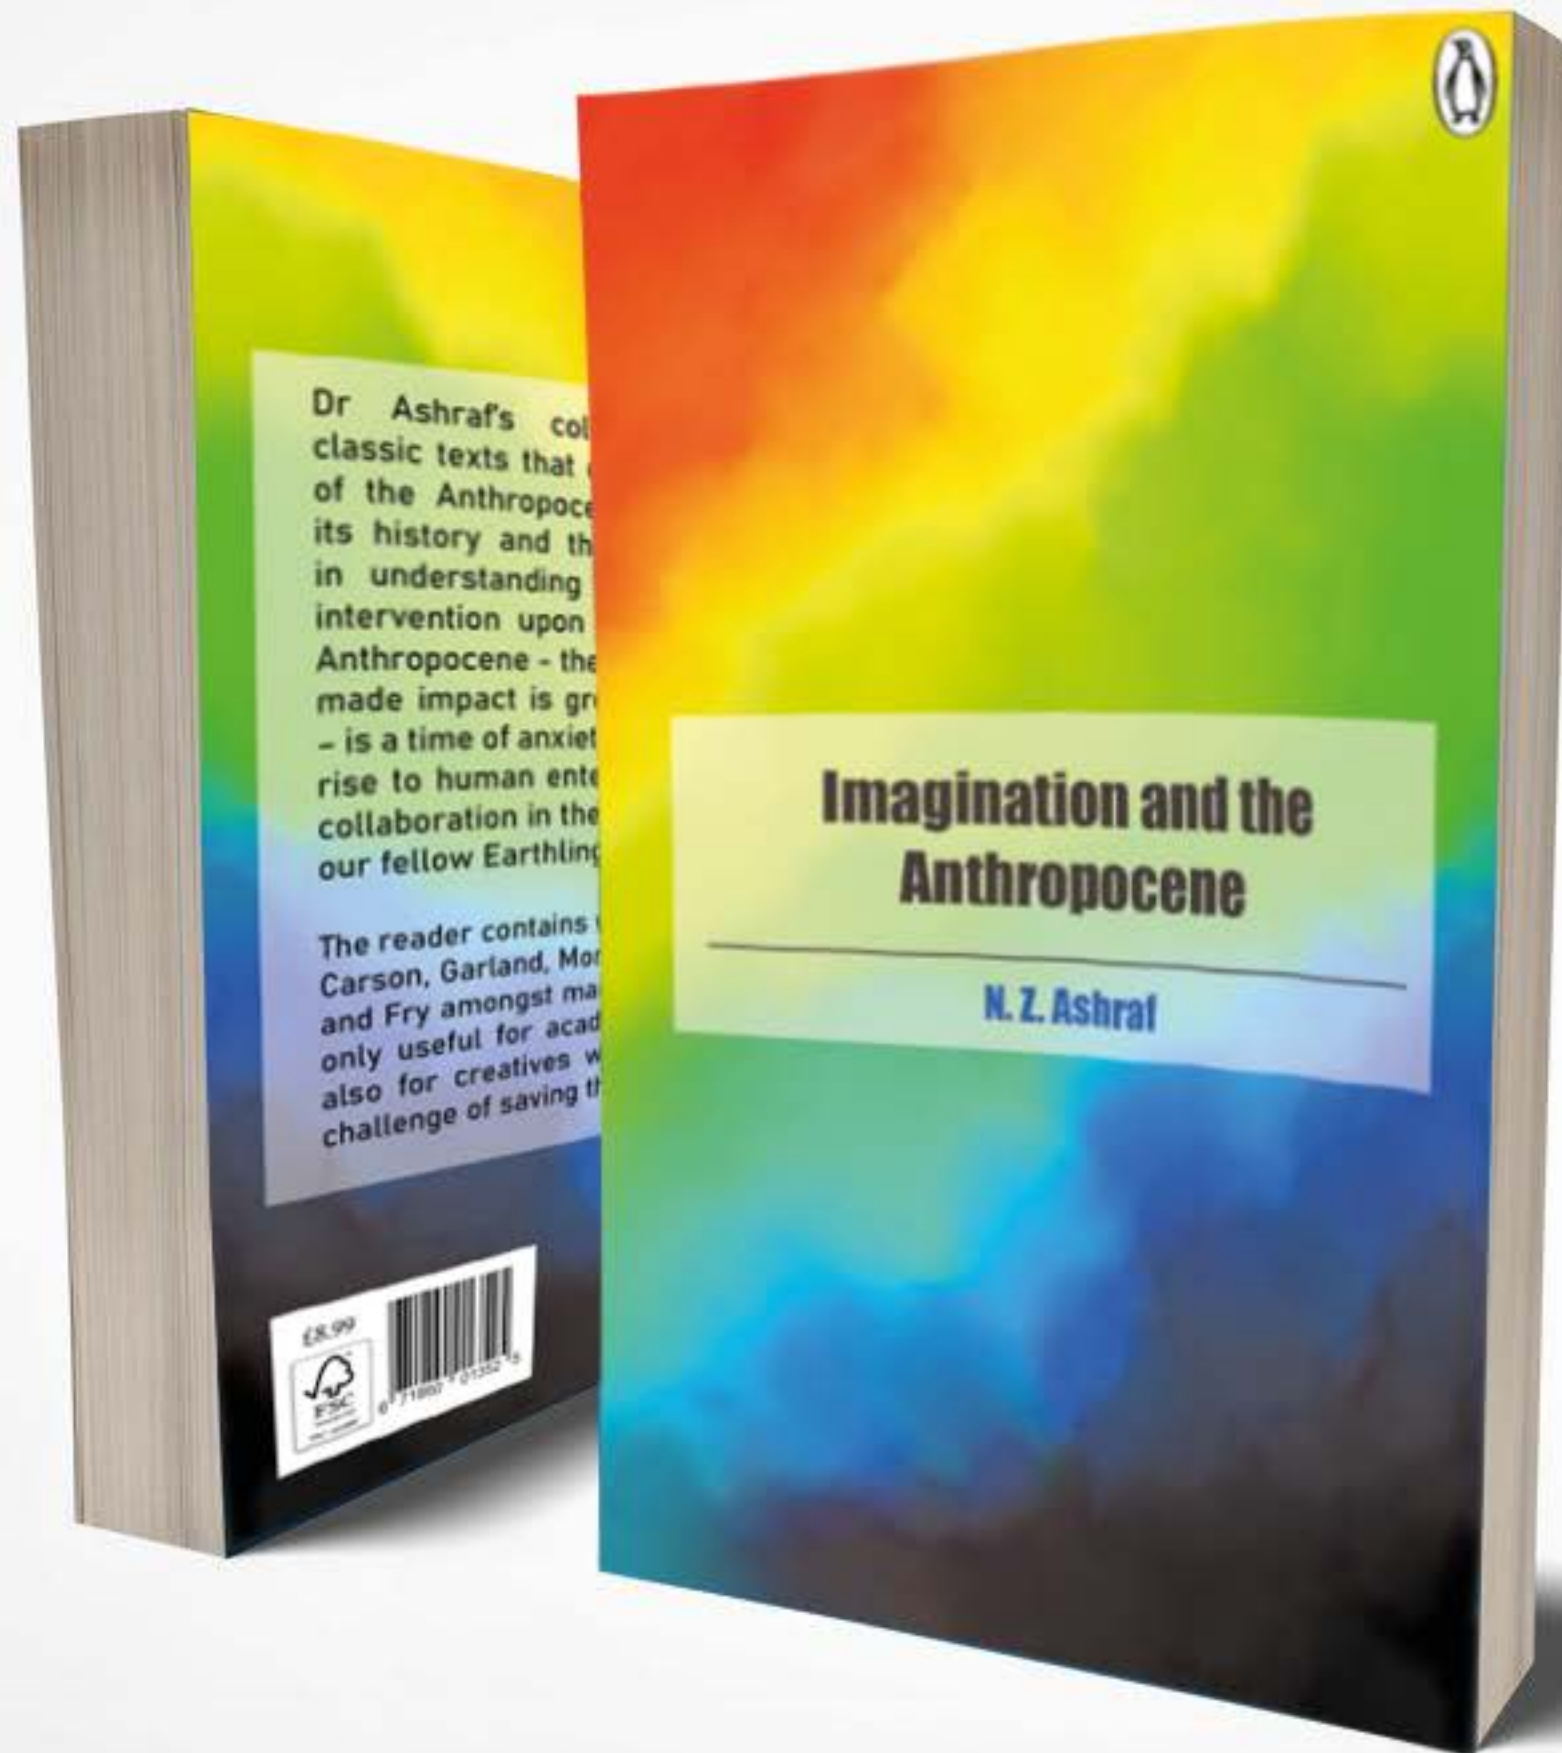

Dr Ashraf's collection comprises of classic texts that outline the development of the Anthropocene, clearly setting out its history and the recent developments in understanding of impacts of human intervention upon the natural world. The Anthropocene - the first age in which man-made impact is greater than natural ones - is a time of anxiety but also one that gives rise to human enterprise, imagination and collaboration in the mission to save us and our fellow Earthlings from annihilation.

The reader contains works from Blake, Morris, Carson, Garland, Monbiot, Attenborough, Klein and Fry amongst many others that will be not only useful for academics and students, but also for creatives who wish to take on the challenge of saving the planet.
